

China's agricultural science and technology center to host Agricultural High-Tech Fair

18 September 2023 | News

The fair has a total exhibition area of more than 100,000 square meters and has attracted more than 1,500 exhibitors from 49 countries and regions.

The fair has a total exhibition area of more than 100,000 square meters and has attracted more than 1,500 exhibitors from 49 countries and regions.

The 30th Yangling China Agricultural High-Tech Fair will be held on September 19 at the agricultural science and technology center in Yangling City, China. inÂ ShaanxiÂ provinceÂ , western China, with an event focused on soil health and food security.

The fair has a total exhibition area of â??â??more than 100,000 square meters and has attracted more than 1,500 exhibitors from 49 countries and regions. According to the organizing committee, more than 9,000 new achievements in science and technology, new advanced agriculture-related equipment and the most practical new agricultural technologies will be exhibited at the fair.

Eleven activities will also be held during the five days of the event, including the Global Forum on Soil Health 2023 and the China-Central Asia Agriculture Ministers' Meeting.

Experts from the United States, Australia , Kyrgyzstan, Colombia and other countries will exchange views and share policies, technologies and experiences in the field of soil health, in a joint effort to protect soil health and address global challenges.

The Agricultural High-Tech Fair will also go abroad for the first time by establishing an exhibition zone at the China Shaanxi Commodities Trade and Exhibition Center of the SCO agricultural base in Uzbekistan (guest of honor), to showcase technology , specialized agricultural products, machinery, agricultural equipment and biomedicine.