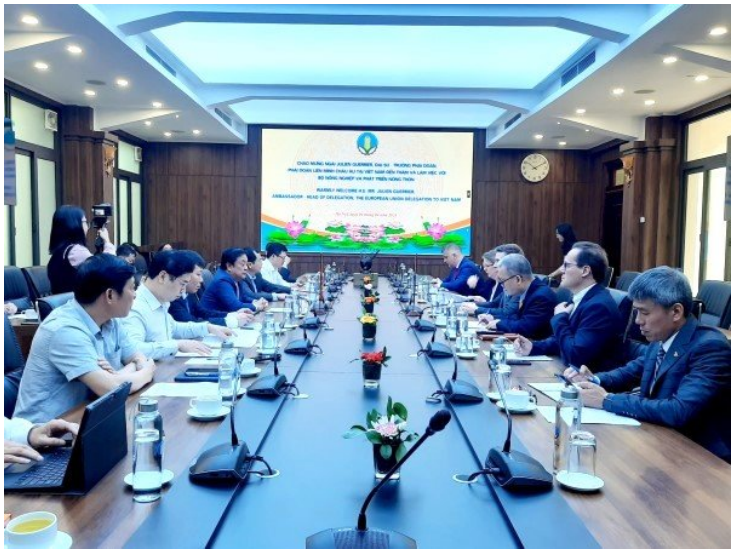
AgroSpectrum ASIA
Envisaging Future | Updating Present

The EU to support Vietnam in developing green agriculture

08 April 2024 | News

Extends bilateral cooperation's



Extends bilateral cooperation's

Vietnam Ministry of Agriculture and Rural Development, Minister Le Minh Hoan discussed with Julien Guerrier, Ambassador - Head of the European Union (EU) on strengthening bilateral cooperative relationship between Vietnam and the EU including cooperation in the field of agriculture.

In the Agricultural and Rural Development Strategy issued by the Prime Minister of Vietnam, Vietnam has also consulted a lot of experience from the European Community (EC) as well as member countries with technical advice. Enthusiastic techniques so that Vietnam can move towards developing a green and sustainable agriculture in the face of many global challenges such as climate change, poverty, desertification...

Vietnam is not only interested in exporting agricultural products to the large EU market, but also wants to share and learn from the experiences of member countries around agricultural development, science and technology, innovation, digital transformation, green transformation, as well as support from you in terms of resources and technical advice.

A lot of support is given to Vietnam in the fields of forestry and fisheries, in particular through the implementation of the European Union Anti-Deforestation Regulation (EUDR) and the journey to remove the yellow card on the EU side of IUU. In the future, the Minister Le Minh Hoan hopes that the EU will continue to cooperate with Vietnam and support its green agriculture development.Â Â